MANY COUNTY SCHOOLS OPEN

Gettysburg and Half of Adams County Schools Get Early Start for Winter's Work. Children Anxious to go to School.

This morning the bells on the public school buildings in eighteen of the districts in Adams County announced that another year's work was about to begin and summoned from all sections the boys and girls to their studies. The other seventeen school districts will start their winter's work next Monday.

The Gettysburg schools were among those to get an early start and the school children were out early with tablets, pencils, companions and other things more or less necessary to their welfare in the work of the coming nine months. Few of them were very sorry that their vacation was over for the first day of school is always surrounded by a sort of delightful uncertainty which makes it one of the happiest days in the year. Two little fellows were heard on the street before nine o'clock in earnest conversation.

"If I like my teacher this year better than the one I had last year I'll be going some."

"Aw, I don't care what the teacher's like. I can have a good time with any of 'em."

All were on hand when the opening bell rang and taking first impressions of the new teacher. The crowd was a noisy one until they realized that they were actually getting to work and then they became more quiet, settled down behind their desks and got a good start on their winter's journey through the paths of knowledge.

The year promises to be a successful one in the schools both in Gettysburg and all over the county. The corps of teachers has never been better and all of the school districts have competent people in charge of the training of the boys and girls under their care. Teachers' meetings, district and county institutes and courses of training at summer schools have made Adams County's school teachers among the best in the state and as a result the children in the county get the very best training obtainable.

COUNTY FARMS CHANGE HANDS

The Sidney Chronister farm of 75 acres in Reading township, was sold by P. C. Smith, administrator, to Hiram Bream, for $21 per acre.

The heirs of B. M. Miller, deceased, sold the farm of 14 acres in Reading township, at public sale to William Sebright, at $35 per acre.

Eli Gentzler, of near East Berlin, has purchased the farm of George Seabright, in Hamilton township, for $47.45 per acre. The property contains 70 acres and is located about one mile from East Berlin.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION

Messrs. W. C. Alwine and W. H. Carbaugh, the energetic brick manufacturers at Berlin Junction, have each fitted up their respective plants with means of fighting fire, should any occur. Pipes have been put down from the large ponds and a sufficient quantity of hose secured that any part of the yards or any of the buildings can be reached. It is so arranged that the water can be forced over any of the buildings by the large engines which are kept in operation to manufacture brick, day and night.

UNDERWENT OPERATION

Miss Bessie Albert, the 19-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Albert, of Hampton, underwent an operation by Dr. King, of York, assisted by Dr. Possy, of York, and Dr. Ira McDowell, of Hampton, and Miss Will, a graduate nurse. The operation was for appendicitis, but other complications appeared and the chances for recovery are not very encouraging. Miss Frommeyer, of Gettysburg, is now in attendance.

GYPSY WORRIED OVER HIS LOSS

Chief of Band Camping at South End of Town Much Worried because he has Lost Papers Proving his Citizenship.

An interesting story lies back of the local "ad" published elsewhere in these columns telling of the loss of the naturalization papers of Nicholas George and offering a reward for their return.

George is the leader of the band of gypsies who are encamped at the south end of town as a result of their taking out a county license. George was a resident of San Francisco for about ten years and while there worked and studied that he might become an American citizen. His efforts were finally rewarded with success and he received his naturalization papers which he prizes above almost any of his possessions.

The band of gypsies which he heads has frequently gotten into trouble and by producing the articles necessary to show that he is a citizen of the United States he has secured more consideration than he would otherwise have gotten. Shortly after the settlement of Wednesday night's trouble George missed the valuable documents and at once told County Treasurer Slonaker who advised him to try to secure their return by placing an advertisement in these columns. As yet nothing has been heard of them.

George, whose original residence is unknown formerly came from England. He and his band expect to stay here until after the dedication of the Pennsylvania monument, hoping that they may find lucrative business from the thousands of visitors expected at that time.

After they leave here the gypsy band will go to Washington and George is especially anxious that he may have his papers upon arriving at the nation's Capitol. After spending several weeks there he will leave for Canada and then return to England where he had hoped that his American citizenship would prove of value to him.

Should the papers not be recovered he will be at no little trouble to get duplicates and the captain of the gypsies is hoping that he may be saved this inconvenience. He is a shrewd, intelligent fellow and an interesting talker.

GRADUATES REUNION

The fourth annual reunion of the graduates of the Adams County course of study was held on Saturday at Round Top where many of the county alumni spent a very pleasant afternoon. A program of vocal and instrumental music was rendered and Dr. William A. Granville made an address. The following officers were elected: president, E. A. Rice, class of 1904; vice president, Ervin Bucher 1907; secretary, Nettie Jacobs 1907; treasurer, Irene Fleck 1909. The following executive committee was chosen: Alma Rice 1908; Bruce Jacobs 1908; Alice Wolf 1907. It was decided that next year's reunion be held on the first Thursday of August and that the executive committee make a special and personal effort to have every graduate present. Next year's reunion will be an all day picnic and in addition to the work of the executive committee it is expected that every member will make an effort to get every other graduate to attend.

HOG RUN DOWN

On Saturday morning while William Gross, tenant on the farm of John Flemming, of Hanover, below New Oxford, along the York pike, was driving a fat hog, of good size, to town, the animal was run down by a large auto and so badly injured that it had to be killed, which was done immediately by bleeding, and thus the meat was not all rendered unfit for use.

DECLARES SMALL COLLEGES BETTER

President Granville, of Gettysburg College, States that Morals of Students are Better in Small than in Large Institutions.

That the moral tone of the smaller colleges is superior to the larger, was one of the points made by Dr. William A. Granville, president of Gettysburg college, in an address delivered at the St. Matthew's Lutheran church, York, Sunday night on the subject of "Christian Education."

Dr. Granville urged the attendance of students at the smaller institutions previous to their entrance in the larger colleges and universities, on the ground that having attended both their point of view was enlarged.

After emphasizing the importance of a broad collegiate foundation for both professional and technical work he pointed out some of the advantages the smaller institution has over the larger. Among these were the fact that in the former the student comes into closer personal contact with his instructors, and as a consequence receives closer individual attention from the members of the faculty.

Many Gettysburg alumni and students at the college greeted Dr. Granville at the conclusion of the service.

MRS. OSCAR KEHM

Mrs. Oscar Kehm, formerly Miss Maggie Phillips, of East Berlin, died at the York hospital at 4.40 a. m., Friday, from sickness of several weeks with abdominal trouble, aged 81 years. She was admitted to the hospital about 10 days ago and operated upon.

She is survived by her husband; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Phillips, East Berlin; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Keagy, of York, and Miss Nellie Phillips, East Berlin, and one brother, Guy Phillips, East Berlin.

Funeral Sunday at 1 p. m., services in Trinity Lutheran church, East Berlin, Rev. A. C. Forscht officiating.

MAD DOG SCARE

A fake mad dog scare at the Gettysburg Department Store on Saturday evening caused no little consternation among customers and clerks for several minutes. A dog which had wandered into the store started running after the cash carriers from various parts of the store to the cashier's desk. He was so earnest in his pursuit that he ran into several people and it was but a moment or two until his peculiar actions started the mad dog alarm. The owner finally arrived, took charge of the animal and peace and quiet were restored, the usual Saturday night's business being resumed again.

BROKE SWIMMING RECORD

On Sunday John Sachs, who is a member of Camp Out-a-while along the Big Conowingo broke the record for swimming from the bridge near Dicks' to the breast of the dam and return. He made the round trip in an hour and eleven minutes with a minute's rest before starting on the return. This is two minutes better than the record. Mr. Sachs used the same stroke both ways and made the return trip in a minute better than the first.

CALVIN BIGGS

Calvin Biggs, a former resident of Adams county, son of the late Basil and Mary E. Biggs, died in York Saturday. He was born May 16th, 1850 and was aged 60 years, 3 months and 11 days.

Funeral at the Asbury M. E. Church, Gettysburg, Tuesday at 2 p. m. Interment in the Colored Cemetery.

HUMAN HEARTS

On Tuesday, August 30, the stage of the Walter Theatre will be devoted to the presentation of the popular and highly successful play "Human Hearts," with a company of superior excellence and strength. The author of the play is an actor of wide experience and fully understands the art of playmaking from the standpoint of both the spectator and actor. His effects are produced quickly, but none the less does he hold patent sway over the passions of his auditors. The play is too well known to require more than a passing word on the plot. The main thread of the story centers around Tom Logan, who is unjustly accused of murder, and sentenced to life imprisonment. His wife, Jeanette, who is a proud ambitious woman degraded as she is, instinct of motherhood prompts her to return to the old home to try to gain possession of her child, Grace, but she is frustrated in her design and the clouds of adversity are dispelled by the sweet sunshine of a true woman's love.

The great vitagraph story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in three reels will be at The Wizard Tuesday night. Show starts 6 o'clock.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Grew a Full Growth of Hair on a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

YOUTH FOUND SHOT DEAD IN STREET

Washington Police Have Mystery on Their Hands.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Norval T. Harris, twenty-one years old, was found shot to death beside a disused boiler at Ninth and I streets, South West.

The police believe that to solve the mystery they must find the weapon with which the fatal shot was fired, and an unidentified negro, who discovered the body and then made off without giving his name.

If Harris was murdered, robbery was not the motive, because there was found on the body $43.57 in money and a watch and chain. The holster which had contained his revolver was in his pocket, but empty.

A telegram was found in the boy's pocket signed Florie Ledman, telling him to be sure to be in Baltimore at 9 a. m. on Tuesday. Mr. Harris, the boy's uncle, says he appeared despondent after a visit to Baltimore not more than a week ago.

FLAG ETIQUETTE.

Displaying the National Ensign at Half Mast.

There have been many mistakes made about the etiquette of the flag. When President William McKinley was assassinated thousands of loyal Americans raised flags at half mast over their places of business and let them fly by night and by day until they wore out. They undoubtedly thought they were showing respect to McKinley's memory. But they were not showing proper respect to the flag. The United States government displayed at that time its flag at half mast from sunrise to sunset from the president's death until his burial. The government regulations provide that on the death of a president in office its flag shall be displayed at half mast only one day.

MURDERED IN A GARAGE

Missing Manager's Body Found Buried There.

EMPLOYEE UNDER ARREST

Crime Was Discovered Two Days After He Quit His Job—Victim Was Robbed of at Least $100.

Point Marion, Pa., Aug. 29.—With every indication that a murder had been committed, the body of Frank Ringle, fifty-four years old, who has been mysteriously missing from his home here since Aug. 16, was found buried under the floor of the automobile garage of W. L. Harvey.

Ringle was a well-to-do man and had for some time been acting as the superintendent for Mr. Harvey, with whom he had formerly been associated in business.

The head was badly crushed and the body was found, one foot under the ground, covered with grass, weeds and earth.

The suspicion that Ringle had met with foul play was raised in the mind of Harvey when blood spots were discovered on the floor in an upper room of the garage.

Harvey had occasion to go beneath the floor of the garage to lay a "pipe line." He noticed earth displaced, and in brushing it away he came upon a human hand. Mr. Harvey at once got aid and the body of Ringle was disinterred. It was lying on its left side and the head was crushed in as though by a bludgeon.

Mr. Ringle had been seen last when he went to the automobile garage, on Aug. 16, and at that time he had $100 at least in his pockets. When found there was no money in his clothing. He had gone to the garage, having been instructed by Harvey to ship two tires to Pittsburgh. An investigation made by Harvey after Ringle disappeared disclosed that the tires had not been shipped.

Lewis Leuber, charged with the murder of Ringle, was arrested and taken to the Fayette county jail at Uniontown. He is the man who occupied the room on the floor of which bloodstains were found, and who quit work at the garage Thursday.

There is strong circumstantial evidence against Leuber. It is said that a witness on the morning of the day that Ringle disappeared overheard the two men talking. Ringle pulled a roll of bills from his pocket, and when Leuber is said to have remarked, "I would like to have that roll," Ringle said, "Well, I have more," and pulled an other roll from another pocket, showing it to Leuber.

The second roll, however, it is said, Ringle left at home with his wife later, keeping a sum upward of $100, which amount he was in the habit of carrying.

A postmortem showed that Ringle's death was due to a fractured skull, he having been beaten by a blunt instrument.

TRUST CRUSHES UNION

Open Shop at Last in Full Effect in Steel Mills.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—Saturday closed the fourteen months' battle of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers against "open shop" conditions in the sheet and tin plate mills of the United States steel trust.

The vote of the national executive board of the workers' union, declaring of the strike declared on July 1 of last year, went into effect and the unionists were free to apply for their old jobs under non-union conditions, without censure from the Amalgamated Association.

The strike ends in a complete victory for the steel trust over the body of 15,000 union sheet and tinplate workers who made the fight. Its significance in industrial history will probably grow with the years, for it marks the end of unionism in the mills of the steel trust. The struggle in the sheet and tinplate mills was the "last ditch" of union labor in steel trust plants.

Nine years ago 60,000 men employed in the Steel Corporation's plants were unionists; today there is not one, and the Amalgamated Association has acknowledged defeat by calling off the last of the succession of strikes, that has lasted through these nine years, for the trust smashed the union piece-meal.

Boy Real Chanticleer.
Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 29.—By grafting a chicken bone into his leg Lloyd Hixson, a fourteen-year-old lad from Vermillion, is expected to be as good as new. Hixson has been for several months past suffering from tuberculosis of the small bone in the leg until it wasted away. He went to Hot Springs, where Dr. Walker removed the bone and substituted one from a chicken, and the new bone is now believed to be knitting satisfactorily.

Two-Headed Rattler Trophy.
Bloomburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—Working in the woods, Christian Earnest, of Jackson township, Columbia county, made the rattlesnake record of the year when he killed sixteen without stopping. One of them, now preserved in alcohol, has two distinct heads, two mouths and four eyes.

MOISSANT TO TRY AGAIN

Daring Aviator Will Attempt Paris-London Flight Alone.

London, Aug. 29.—John B. Moissant, who is still delayed twenty-seven miles from here in his flight to this city from Paris, declares he will attempt the feat again without a mechanic.

"After I get to London," he said, "carrying my mechanic, I intend to London to see how quickly it can be done. I should have the journey in five hours, perhaps in three hours, in the early future."

"I have invented a new aeroplane that will, I hope, make air travel very much easier. It is made entirely of aluminum, and no wires are used in the framework, thus giving greater stability. The body gives the effect of a bird. The rear part contains a section shaped like a torpedo boat. It is water tight and capable of floating a weight of 1600 pounds. In case the machine falls into water it will be amphibious as well as aerial."

"I finished the machine last September in the suburbs of Paris and at tempted to fly last November. I ascended ninety feet at terrific speed, for the machine is capable of traveling seventy-five miles an hour."

THREE DEAD IN RIOT AT BASE BALL GAME

Pistols, Knives and Bats Used by Rival Players.

Brooks, Ga., Aug. 29.—A base ball game between negro clubs for the championship of Fayette county broke up in a riot in the ninth inning, and as a result three ball players are dead, three are probably fatally injured and several less seriously hurt. The dead men are "Kid" Iverson, Jim Barrett and Harvey Mayes, members of the Brooks team, which was opposing the Hartford team.

Pistols, knives and base ball bats were used in the riot, scores of spectators taking sides with the rival ball teams.

The riot was caused by a close decision of Umpire Smith in the ninth, which allowed the Brooks team to score the winning run. The members of the Hartford team and their friends at once moved on the umpire, who was protected by the Brooks team. Although the fighting raged about the umpire, he escaped without serious injury.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"After You, Sir"

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

While sauntering leisurely along a thoroughfare, smoking, largely for the purpose of killing time, I was accosted by a gentlemanly, well dressed man who doffed his hat before speaking to me.

"I beg pardon, sir," he said, "but could you spare me a little of your time?"

"For what purpose, sir?"

"That is not easy to explain on the street. If you will step inside I will show you rather than tell you."

"Inside where?"

"Right here."

He pointed to an open door, and I could see a staircase. The building seemed to be unused.

There are people who seem to have a power to make other people obey them, not by force, not always by insistence. In this case the man was so gentlemanly in his request that I did not like to refuse him. At any rate, before I realized what I was doing I had gone to the upper floor of an unoccupied building with a person who had accosted me on the street and asked me to go with him, for what purpose he had not explained. This seems to me now absurd on the face of it, and at the time I knew that I should do no such thing, but I couldn't help it.

He took me into a room on the second floor. In its center was what looked to me to be a hot air furnace, only it was neither round nor square, but oblong. He closed the door behind us, and I heard a click. I didn't like it, for it sounded as though it came from a lock that closed automatically. I was about to turn and get out of the place, but my pride held me, and I waited to be informed further as to this strange proceeding.

The gentleman led me to a corner of the room railed off apparently for an office, where there were chairs, and invited me to be seated.

"Do you see that oven?" he said.

"Well, that has cost me a great deal of labor. Perhaps you think it is a crematory, but it is not. It is an oven for baking bread. A hundred loaves can be baked at once and in three minutes. That's 2,000 loaves an hour, and by working day and night three reliefs we have 28,000 loaves a day. Six working days give us 168,000 loaves a week. Fifty-two weeks produce 8,736,000 loaves a year."

"So much for what my oven will do. Now for my object. It is to feed the world. You see, my angle oven is not large. Suppose there are ten of them in this building alone. That gives 87,360,000 loaves a year, only about 4,000,000 miles less than the distance of the earth from the sun."

Since I could see no relationship between loaves of bread and the earth's distance from the sun I began to feel a bit uncertain about the gentleman's upper story. So I said to him, rising:

"You'll have to excuse me, sir. It is not possible for me to remain any longer."

"But you have not examined my invention. Besides, I told you I wanted you for a purpose."

"What purpose?"

"Come, I will show you."

He led me to the oven. He seemed so harmless that I followed him. He threw open the door, displaying a number of iron shelves. I was somewhat relieved that there was no heat in the oven.

"My arrangement for heat is by chemical process. There are many substances that produce heat in combining chemically. Why should we burn coal? I turn this cock and my substances run together. In a short time I shall have my oven quite hot enough to do my baking."

"I wouldn't turn it on if I were you," I remarked, "since you have no bread ready for baking."

"I have something else. My desire is to bake a human being."

This was getting warm as the child drea say when hunting for things in games. And as the strange gentleman looked at me, indicating that I was the human being he proposed to bake, I felt not only warm, but a cold perspiration stood out on me, especially when he drew a long sharp knife with which to enforce his demands. I knew I had to deal with a lunatic and kept my head.

"I shall be happy," I said, "to have you bake me. On which shelf am I to take position?"

"Step in and I will show you."

"After you," I said deferentially, bowing and raising my hat.

He stepped into the furnace. I closed the door with a bang, and the big iron latch fell into position. Then the room swam, and I fell on the floor. But I did not remain there long. Fearful that the lunatic might smother, I ran to the door of the room, found it locked and could not open it. I tried a win dow, and that served a call through. In a few minutes a policeman came up the stairs, broke down the door and let the gentleman baker out. He was nearly suffocated and gave no trouble. He had employed men to build his oven without their having the slightest suspicion as to his sanity; I learned that he was a scientific man and had been an inventive genius as well. On my testimony he was committed to an asylum.

It makes me crawl when I think that by a mere act of politeness I was saved from death.

T. R. GETS TOUGH OF WILD WEST

Rides Twenty Miles With Cow-boys to Sheep Ranch.

THEN GOES TO DENVER

Receives Enthusiastic Reception in Colorado Capital and Addresses Legislature After Reviewing a Parade and Attending a Banquet.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 29.—Colonel Roosevelt arrived here this morning and was greeted by a salute of twenty-one guns. The ex-president received the most enthusiastic reception of his tour and was kept on the move all day. He first reviewed a parade and then attended a banquet given by the Denver Press club. This afternoon he will address the Colorado legislature.

T. R. got a touch of the real west at Cheyenne. The old banking for the plains and the plain people, with whom he spent several years before he broke into the political game seriously, has been satiated. He mounted a horse and rode twenty miles out to Senator F. E. Warren's sheep ranch. He ate a game dinner that included sage chickens brought over from Laramie. And he whooped whenever he felt like it. Formality had flown.

Cheyenne spent Sunday in its usual quiet way. Saturday night wasn't so fast that it left a hangover, and the clear-eyed inhabitants who live on the elevation of 6000 feet rustled around early in the morning. Mr. Roosevelt was tired after a dinner party and a late reception Saturday night, so he slept later than he does as a rule. He went to church in the morning, and right after he got away from the congregation put on his riding togs and joined his party. Lieutenant Tompkins, R. S. Van Tassel and Nat Baker, a ranchman, went with T. R. Senator Warren used an automobile. Van Tassel is seventy years old, a man of remarkable vitality, who years ago fought the Indians and nearly got scalped. Pole Creek ranch is about twenty miles from Cheyenne. Senator Warren bought it some time ago to raise sheep. He started a system of irrigation and has been mighty successful with a dry farming process that has produced an extraordinary amount of stuff. An ample supply of water from Pole creek has turned the arid plains into fine soil. Roosevelt and his party started out from Cheyenne for Pole Creek under a sun that baked the plains. The pace that old man Van Tassel set for the bunch caused the colonel to sit up and take notice, but T. R. stayed on the job and never wavered for a second. They had three cow ponies ready for him, using them as relays, because the colonel is heavy and keeps anything, whether his human or animal, working steady.

Out at Pole Creek, northeast of Cheyenne, the colonel found many cow punchers and range riders and twisters and peelers awaiting his arrival. He rode over the ranch with the crowd, saw them do a few stunts and then sat down to a big game dinner in the house. T. R. enjoyed the eats to beat the band. Everybody pitched in and helped themselves and got after the sage chickens and lamb and things voraciously. When they got through they weren't served with finger bowls, either. The riders sat around, smoked awhile after the dinner. They were too full to be joggled and bucked by a mean little cow pony and they weren't taking chances. Mr. Roosevelt sat on the streets and spun yarns of the old west as he knew it twenty-seven years ago.

At one place along the road there was a reception for T. R. The school children in their white organdies were lined opposite an enthusiastic band. The colonel had to pass through the narrow lane, while the band worked and the school kids sang "America" shrilly. A busy little horse that he rode stood up on its hind legs and reared and fussed something awful. T. R. expected at any moment to slay a flock of our future voters, but he had to smile and bow just as though he loved it above everything. That ride between the school children and the band was one of the hardest he ever made, he declared.

Charlie Irwin and George Hersig and the others who had the frontier celebration in their hands received the highest praise from Mr. Roosevelt. He told them that it was bully and that he'll be out again if he can get away.

Along about 8 o'clock in the evening the colonel and others said farewell to Pole Creek and began the journey home. T. R. motored back.

THOMAS E. WATSON.

Accuses Congressman Hardwick of Planning to Murder Him.

SAYS HE'D MURDER HIM

Tom Watson Accuses Congressman Hardwick of Planning to Kill Him.
Thomson, Ga., Aug. 29.—The climax of the fight which Thomas E. Watson, once candidate for president on the Populist ticket, has been making on Congressman Hardwick, came when he made the charge that Hardwick is planning his assassination in the belief that Hoke Smith, after he is inaugurated governor, will pardon him, as Governor Patterson pardoned the slayer of Senator Carmack in Tennessee.

"Hardwick purposes to take me at a disadvantage some day when I am not prepared for him, get the drop on me with a pistol or gun and shoot me," says Watson.

"His mind is so disordered by the long years of intemperance that he is capable of believing that he can kill me as old Duncan Cooper killed Senator Carmack, and that he would be pardoned by Governor Smith, as Carmack's assassin was pardoned by Governor Patterson. My blood is not ditch water and my life is worth more to me than my family and my country. This is the third time that I have had convincing proof that Hardwick has threatened it. If ever he should carry out his threat, shoot me down like a dog and get a pardon from Governor Smith, neither the assassin nor the governor who protected him from punishment could escape the vengeance of my friends.

"A word from Hoke Smith would cause Hardwick to resign the nomination for congress which he won unfairly last Tuesday and allow the selection of a respectable representative for us in congress. If Hoke Smith should fail to speak this word after having learned that Hardwick has threatened my life, my friends would hold him responsible should I be assassinated."

KILLS NEGRO AFTER HIS DAUGHTER

Father Shoots Man Trying to Enter Her Room.

Elkton, Md., Aug. 29.—In making his fifth trip on the porch roof at the home of Alfred Cannan, at Cecilton, James Price, aged forty years, a desperate colored ex-convict, lost his life when shot by Mr. Cannan.

Price was released from the Maryland penitentiary eighteen months ago, after serving a ten year sentence for attempting to commit an assault on Mrs. Sarah Simon at her home in Elkton. It is charged that during the past few months Price made four different attempts to gain an entrance to the room of Miss Martha Cannan, a nineteen-year-old public school teacher. He was warned by Mr. Cannan to keep away, and Mr. Cannan came to Elkton and consulted State Attorney Constable, he telling the county prosecutor that should the man again attempt to annoy his daughter he would shoot him.

At 10 o'clock at night the Cannan family retired, and half an hour later Price was seen climbing on the porch roof and trying to raise Miss Cannan's bedroom window. She called to her father, and the colored man, hearing him coming, started to descend, but the bullet from the revolver struck Price near the heart, he falling to the ground, then ran for fifty yards, where he fell dead on the main street.

Mr. Cannan surrendered to the sheriff and was released on his own recognizance.

TAFT'S APPEAL TO REPUBLICANS

Tells Why Party's Congressmen Should Be Elected.

TO REDEEM ITS PLEDGES

Give Party's Record in Congress and Says More Important Measures Are to Be Enacted.

New York, Aug. 29.—An urgent call for all Republicans to forget their differences after the nominations of their party have been made and to unite in trying to elect Republican nominees and thus insure the further carrying out of platform promises is made in the letter which President Taft has written for use in the Republican campaign textbook.

The letter was addressed to Chairman William B. McKinlay, of the Republican congressional committee, at the headquarters in the St. James building. It virtually takes the place of a party platform in the campaign for congress this fall, and it is evident that the president intended it for such.

Only a brief and guarded reference is made to any factional strife within the party and that in the very beginning of the letter. Assuming that party candidates will have already been selected by the time his letter is published, which, however, is not the case, the question will be, says Mr. Taft, "not what complexion of Republicanism one prefers, but whether it is better for the country to have the Republican party control the legislation for the next two years and further redeem its promises or to enable a Democratic majority in the house either to interpose a veto to Republican measures or to formulate and pass bills to carry out Democratic principles."

Only twice does the name of Mr. Taft's predecessor appear in his letter, and that is in reference to conservation. To Mr. Roosevelt Mr. Taft gives the credit for arousing public interest in this subject.

A large part of the letter is a summary of the legislation of the last session as evidence of desire of the Republican party to fulfill its promises.

Among the measures yet to be enacted and for which he asks the return of a Republican majority, Mr. Taft places the measure to curb the injunction power. He declares that the Democratic substitute "would create a privileged class of lawless workmen and would seriously impair the power of the courts of equity to do justice."

The regulation of stocks and bonds of railroads, a ship subsidy measure and a national board of health are other promises which remain to be kept, the president asserts. Those who wish for such legislation, in which Mr. Taft uses the word progressive, should vote for Republican candidates, the president insists.

The principal points in the letter are as follows:

It is better to have the Republican party in power in order further to redeem its promises.

The Republican party should forget its differences in the coming election.

All Republicans who believe in the platform principles of 1908 should give loyal support to candidates.

The legislative program could not be carried out by one congress.

JUGGLED BY BRUI

A Boy's Remarkable Adventure With a Pet Bear.

After the Unique Performance Was Over, Seventy-six Stitches in the Lad's Scalp and Rolls of Surgical Plaster on His Shins Saved His Life.

Ben was a pet black bear four years old and as good natured and friendly as if his ancestors had never had bad reputations. There is only one occasion on record, says his owner, Mr. William H. Wright, in his biography of Ben in "Black Bear," when even to appearances did Ben misbehave himself.

The circumstances being examined, however, the animal came off with his good name virtually untouched. Ben had been left in his shed as usual. Later in the day a crowd was seen about the door. I hurried home to find most of the women of the neighborhood wringing their hands and calling down all kinds of trouble on my head.

At first I could make neither head nor tail of the clamor, but finally gathered that that bloodthirsty, savage and unspeakable bear of mine had killed a boy, and upon asking to see the victim I was told that the remains had been taken to a neighbor's house and a doctor summoned.

This was pretty serious news; but, knowing that whatever had happened Ben had not taken the offensive without ample cause, I unchained him and put him in the cellar of my house, well out of harm's way, before looking further into the matter. Then I went over to the temporary morgue and found the corpse—it was one of the Urbin boys—sitting up on the kitchen floor, holding a sort of impromptu reception and, with the exception of Ben, the least excited of any one concerned.

I could not help admiring the youngster's pluck, for he was an awful sight. From his feet to his knees his legs were lacerated, and his clothing was torn to shreds, and the top of his head—redder by far than ever nature had intended—was covered with blood. As soon as I laid eyes on him I guessed what had happened.

It developed that the two Urbin boys had broken open the door of the shed and gone in to wrestle with the bear. Ben was willing, as he always was, and a lively match was soon on, whereupon, seeing that the bear did not harm the two already in the room, neither of the boys joined in the scuffle. Then one of them got on the bear's back.

This was a new one on Ben, but he took kindly to the idea and was soon galloping round the little room with his rider. Then another boy climbed on, and Ben carried the two of them at the same mad pace. Then the third boy got aboard, and round they all went, much to the delight of themselves and their cheering audience in the doorway.

But even Ben's muscles of steel had their limit of endurance, and after a few circles of the room with the three riders he suddenly stopped and rolled over on his back.

And now an amazing thing happened. Of the three boys suddenly tumbled helter skelter from their seats one happened to fall upon the upturned jaws of the bear, and Ben, who for years had juggled rope balls, cord sticks and miniature logs, instantly undertook to give an exhibition with his new implement.

Gathering the badly frightened boy into position, the bear set him whirling. His clothing from his shoe tops to his knees was soon ripped to shreds and his legs torn and bleeding. His scalp was lacerated by the sharp claws until the blood came. His cries rose to shrieks and sank again to moans. But the bear, unmoved, kept up the perfect rhythm of his strokes.

Finally the terrified lookers-on in the doorway, realizing that something had to be done if their leader was not to be twirled to death before their eyes, tore a rail from the fence and with a few pokes in Ben's side induced him to drop the boy, who was then dragged out apparently more deadly than alive.

The doctor took seventy-six stitches in the lad's scalp and put rolls of surgical plaster on his shins. So square and true had Ben juggled him that not a scratch was found on his face or on any part of his body between the top of his head and his knees. He eventually came out of the hospital no worse for his ordeal, but I doubt if he ever again undertook to ride a bear.

A Drop in Rhetoric.

"I remember," said an official of the East Indian service, "the speech of an Anglo-Indian who was delegated by a certain district to place before the government's notice the horrible slaughter of their stock by tigers. A very noticeable titter could be heard in the audience when the delegate shouted very dramatically:

"Mr. Chairman, the tiger is the most ferocious animal that prowls and runs at large in India. He creeps from his lurking place at the hour of midnight, when all nature is locked in the arms of Morpheus, and ere the portals of the east are unbound or bright Phoebus rises in his golden majesty whole hordes of pigs are destroyed."

CANNIBALISM.

It is the Religion of the Savages Who Practice It.

In the course of his thirteen years as a missionary in the Fiji Islands the Rev. Joseph Nettleton learned a good deal about cannibalism and even saw some of his colleagues killed and eaten. "It is a common mistake to think that these men eat human beings because of hunger," he said. "Cannibalism is their religion. The ovens in the temple where they cook their human sacrifices are never used for any other purpose. I once witnessed the capture of a white victim. He was surrounded, bound hand and foot and dragged along to the temple, where he was dashed with terrific force against the altar. Then he was pushed inside the compound, while the chiefs arranged as to the division of the body and began a war dance. Their hideous war-lance—the 'demon' they call it—makes one's flesh creep. An American sea captain who once visited the Islands said he was not so much afraid of being eaten as he was of this dance. It took all the courage out of him."

Mr. Nettleton had to use extreme tact to avoid arousing suspicion among the savages. "My colleague, Mr. Baker, was murdered, cooked and eaten with seven others while exploring," he said. "The cannibals thought he was spying. I never carried a revolver. Why? Because the cannibals say at once, 'He doesn't carry that to kill himself; therefore he means to kill us, and they act accordingly.'"

The Rev. J. Calvert, another of Mr. Nettleton's colleagues, had a narrow escape. He was surrounded by cannibals, and it was decided that he should be killed. By a miracle his life was spared. "My friend pleaded till he was hoarse," said Mr. Nettleton, "but it was of no avail. Suddenly one of the cannibals remembered that Mr. Calvert had doctored him when he was ill. That saved my friend's life."—Chicago News.

A CHINESE TITBIT.

Eggs That Have Been Preserved For a Century or More.

When Li Hung Chang made his tour of the world his commissariat carried with it a supply of Chinese preserved eggs for the venerable ambassador's special use. Some of these eggs were exhibited in New York while he was staying here, and a few experts had the temerity to sample them. "They were not so bad after all," was the verdict of one American connoisseur, "although by their looks you would think they would come under the ban of the pure food law."

The eggs were incased in clay and when unpacked looked like pieces of punice stone. They are preserved in this way by the Chinese for a century or more, and Li Hung Chang admitted that the hen which laid the eggs for his morning meal might have been decapitated anywhere from a quarter to half a century before he was born. The process of keeping is very primitive, but as effective as it is simple. The eggs are first boiled hard, and then while they are hot they are wrapped in soft clay and packed away.

In this condition the Chinese claim they will keep forever and not lose their flavor or wholesomeness. Indeed, they consider that age improves the flavor. Li Hung Chang's commissariat brought the eggs for his personal use in bags packed in rice husks, but as the clay was hard there was not much danger of breaking them. When opened the "white" was found to be almost black and the yolks green. The flavor, however, was preserved. The Chinese chop these preserved boiled eggs and decorate most of their viands with them. They also enter largely into all their sauces.

Duck eggs are also preserved by the Chinese in a somewhat similar fashion. There is a considerable trade in duck eggs of the Peking and Muscovy breeds, and many Chinese in this country import them from China in the preserved condition. The duck eggs are boiled and preserved in a paste of charcoal instead of clay.—Harper's Weekly.

By all odds the easiest way to maintain soil fertility is by keeping stock. And of the different types of animal husbandry dairying takes the least from the soil.

TRACING COUNTERFEITS.

Exciting Employment For Skilled Secret Service Men.

The tracing of counterfeit bills back to the persons responsible for their issue is a curious and exciting employment. The expert assigned by the government to this work are among the most skillful members of the secret service. The protection of the currency depends in large measure upon their efficiency, and the palna they take are almost infinite. The following case is one illustrating the difficulties which the secret service people meet and overcome:

A bank clerk in Cleveland had detected a counterfeit twenty dollar bill in the deposit of a small retail grocer. An expert was sent for and undertook the case. He found that the grocer had received the bill from a shoe dealer, who had it from a dentist, who had it from somebody else, and so on, until the secret service man finally traced the bill to an invalid woman who had used it to pay her physician. When questioned this woman said that the money had been sent her by her brother, who lived in New Orleans. The sleuth looked up the brother's antecedents and soon became convinced that he was the man wanted. The brother, however, soon proved to the satisfaction of the secret service man that his suspicions were unfounded. Indeed, it appeared that the money had been received by the New Orleans man in part payment for rent of a house he owned in Pittsburg. While the sleuth was a bit discouraged, he couldn't give over the case when he had gone so far, so he took the next train for Pittsburg.

The tenant of the house in Pittsburg proved to be a traveling oculist who spent most of his time in the middle west. The secret service man had the good luck, however, to catch him just as he had returned from a trip, and the man at once recognized the bill as one that had been given him by a patient in Cleveland, the very point whence the sleuth started.

The patient was a boss carpenter. The secret service man got his address from the oculist and went right after the new clew. At this point he had a premonition that something was going to happen, and he wasn't disappointed. The carpenter, an honest old fellow, said that he had received the bill from a certain Parker. The said Parker was the small grocer in whose bank deposit the counterfeit had turned up. The expert flew to the grocer's as quickly as a cab could take him and found it closed. He had left town.

Afterward it was shown beyond question that the grocer was the agent of an organized band of counterfeiters. His shop was a mere blind. That the bill which he gave the carpenter should get back into his own funds after traveling all over the continent was one of those miracles of chance for which there is no explanation.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Some one who has looked into the matter—we do not vouch for the findings—asserts that bananas are twenty-five times as nutritious as wheat bread and forty times as nutritious as potatoes. With bananas selling at 10 cents a dozen they would seem to be a most economical food even if the above ratio is three or fourfold too large.

While most of the skim milk should go to the young stock on the farm, enough should be reserved to ripen properly for the making of cottage cheese for the boys and girls, whose uninterrupted growth and development are just as important as that of the calves and little pigs. Dutch cheese, as it is quite commonly called, is inexpensive, appetizing and nutritious.

An interesting case has recently been decided in New York. A retail dealer was fined $100 and costs for selling bottled vinegar which had been labeled "Pure Cider Vinegar" by the whole saler. The retailer sued the wholesale dealer to recover damages, but the case went against him. On appeal the decision of the lower court was reversed, throwing the responsibility for the false label on the proper person, the wholesaler who bottled the adulterated product.

Denmark annually exports to English markets 137,500,000 pounds of butter. This fetches on an average 40 cents a pound and represents a value of $55,000,000. Yet Denmark is but about one-third the size of the state of Wisconsin. It would make interesting figuring to take a pencil and see what the value of butter would be were all sections of the country to go into the butter business on the Denmark scale and receive the same price per pound.
